He thought there were some eight or nine gentlemen calling themselves a Government who were legally entitled to be called a Government—and the first duty of Parliament would be to call to the interest of men in possession. (Hear, hear.) He only drew their attention to the fact as one of the significant points of the election, because they would have to decide by their votes, as if there had never before been a constitution in this colony, who was to govern them. (Hear, hear, and a voice—“We will be the Peckes.”) Whether it was Sir Henry Parkes or not, that was the question they would have to decide, and his object in mentioning it was to rouse the electors to consider the question of responsible government now staked. There was a question, Mr. Badgery said, whether it was simply a colony. Why was not (Mr. Gossell) chosen? (Cheers and laughter.) The gentlemen who now called themselves a Government had no more right—constitutionally—to be managing the affairs of the country than the men who opened the doors of the off-ices. (Cheers.) They had a right—and the country would have to be decided—whether they would allow the assassination that had been perpetrated by responsible government, or whether the seeds of responsible government should be revisited. The last Parliament was proposed by Mr. C. M. Lachlan, seconded by Dr. Codrington; and Mr. Valentine Heaton was proposed by Mr. P. M. Kenyon, seconded by Mr. Phillip Watson. The show of hands was demanded in favour of Messrs. Dalton and Heaton, and Mr. Clarke demanded a poll.

ORANGE ELECTORATE.

ORANGE, THURSDAY.

The nominations took place here to-day for the Orange electorate. Mr. W. M. Clarke was proposed by Mr. P. M. Kenyon, the Mayor of Orange, seconded by Mr. Alfred Stevens, J.P.; Mr. Thomas Dalton was proposed by Mr. C. M. Lachlan, seconded by Dr. Codrington; and Mr. Valentine Heaton was proposed by Mr. P. M. Kenyon, seconded by Mr. Phillip Watson. The show of hands was demanded in favour of Messrs. Dalton and Heaton, and Mr. Clarke demanded a poll.

BURRWOOD ELECTORATE.

BURRWOOD, THURSDAY.

The nomination of candidates for the Burrwood electorate took place here to-day. Mr. T. S. Stretton, proposed by Mr. H. J. Ryan, seconded by Mr. A. E. Middleton, J.P.; and Mr. A. G. McCallum was proposed by Mr. Richard Roberts, seconded by Mr. Timothy Berry. An adjournment was then made from the temporary courthouse to the Mechanics' Institute, where the candidates addressed the audience. The show of hands was demanded in favour of Mr. McCallum. The show of hands was decided in favour of Mr. Stretton, only about a dozen being held up in favour of Mr. McCallum. A poll was demanded.

SHOALHAVEN ELECTORATE.

SHOALHAVEN, THURSDAY.

There was a large attendance of electors here to-day at the nomination of candidates for the electorate of Shoalhaven. Mr. P. T. Humphrey was proposed by Mr. John Monaghan, J.P., seconded by Mr. F. McHugh; and Mr. John Wright was proposed by Mr. John Acland, seconded by Mr. W. A. Abercrombie. Mr. Wright was not present owing to ill-health. Mr. Humphrey addressed the electors, defining his past political conduct, and advocating the principles set forth in his address. The show of hands was declared to be in favour of Mr. Humphrey, though the two candidates were nearly equal. Mr. John Martin then addressed the electors, strongly condemning the actions of the late Government as corrupt, and Mr. Humphrey as a condenser of those improprieties. The meeting was most orderly.

WELLINGTON ELECTORATE.

WELLINGTON, THURSDAY.

The nominations for this electorate took place to-day. Mr. D. A. Ferguson was proposed by Mr. Charles H. Barton, manager of the Commercial Bank, and seconded by Mr. H. Riley, farmer. Mr. C. C. Wick was proposed by Mr. A. D. Bennett, and Mr. J. E. Williams by Mr. E. J. Matthews, mill proprietor, and seconded by Mr. Joseph Aarons, Narrawa. Mr. Ferguson spoke very briefly, but the other two candidates occupied a considerable time. The show of hands was in favour of Mr. Ferguson, and a poll was demanded by Messrs. Clegg and Bennett.

GRAFTON ELECTORATE.

GRAFTON, THURSDAY.

The nomination of a candidate for the Grafton electorate took place to-day. Mr. Alfred Lardner, J.P., proposed, and about 150 electors were present. Mr. E. M. Ryan, proposed by Mr. John J. Ryan, and seconded by Mr. A. D. Bennett, and Mr. J. E. Williams by Mr. E. J. Matthews, mill proprietor, and seconded by Mr. Joseph Aarons, Narrawa. Mr. Ferguson spoke very briefly, but the other two candidates occupied a considerable time. The show of hands was in favour of Mr. Ferguson, and a poll was demanded by Messrs. Clegg and Bennett.

COUNTRY ELECTORATE.

COUNTRY, THURSDAY.

The nomination of a candidate for the Country electorate took place to-day. Mr. Alfred Lardner, J.P., proposed, and about 150 electors were present. Mr. E. M. Ryan, proposed by Mr. John J. Ryan, and seconded by Mr. A. D. Bennett, and Mr. J. E. Williams by Mr. E. J. Matthews, mill proprietor, and seconded by Mr. Joseph Aarons, Narrawa. Mr. Ferguson spoke very briefly, but the other two candidates occupied a considerable time. The show of hands was in favour of Mr. Ferguson, and a poll was demanded by Messrs. Clegg and Bennett.

MESSRS. B. BARTON AND SAWYERS AT BREWARRINA.

BREWARRINA, THURSDAY.

Yesterday, Messrs. B. Barton and Sawyers arrived from Broken Hill, and were met a few miles out of town by a large number of townspeople in buggies. A cordial welcome was extended to the party arriving in the town, where a good display of business was visible in houses of the visiting firms. Mr. Barton, in his speech, said that he had been in Victoria, and had recommended the removal of the State of Victoria to the electors of Brewarra, and in doing so he spoke in high terms of that gentleman's ability as a commercial man, who carried out all he had ever promised his constituents. Mr. Barton also expressed a hope that Mr. See would be maintained, and that the two would again be returned. Mr. F. W. Chapman, J.P., seconded the motion, and passed a high eulogy on Mr. See for the manner in which he represented the electors. Mr. Charlton Park supported the motion. As no other candidate was present, Mr. E. M. Ryan, proposed by Mr. John J. Ryan, and seconded by Mr. A. D. Bennett, and Mr. J. E. Williams by Mr. E. J. Matthews, mill proprietor, and seconded by Mr. Joseph Aarons, Narrawa. Mr. Ferguson spoke very briefly, but the other two candidates occupied a considerable time. The show of hands was in favour of Mr. Ferguson, and a poll was demanded by Messrs. Clegg and Bennett.

GUNNEDAH ELECTORATE.

GUNNEDAH, THURSDAY.

Messrs. Abbott and Compton were nominated, and the nomination of a candidate was deferred to a future date.

Referring to the subject of local option, he said that he was in favour of the question as to the number of licensed public-houses being left to the Parliamentary electors instead of, as present, to ratemakers in incorporated areas. He was in favour of the question as to the range of voting on the subject in the division only, but was in favour in favour of slanting up a man's business without giving him compensation. (Cheers.) The business of the publican had been established under laws for the public benefit, and he was bound down by strict regulations. The law was in the interest of the public, and it would be dishonest and unjust to allow a property created under the law to be annihilated without compensation. (Cheers.) Mr. Bright, Mr. Gladstone, and Lord Lansdowne had all given their adherence to the principle of local option, but on the condition that the revenue should be retained by the State. That was his view. The late Government had promised a Local Government Bill, and the question was nearly ready to be dealt with, and it must and would be established in this country. As he understood it, it would give to each district the right to tax itself, and spend the money so obtained in the local character. In this respect he was in favour of it, but the machinery by which it would have to be carried out would have to be very carefully scrutinised from a public point of view by the people and by their representatives. Whether local government would be given to the people in the country—cheers—and if the question came up he would vote for it with the greatest confidence as one of the best things he could do for the good government of the country. With regard to his claims upon the electors he remained silent. He had been elected 12 or 14 times, and had never been rejected—(cheers)—and it would be for them to say on Monday next whether they would introduce some novelty into his career. (Laughter.) He thought he had been a good and efficient representative, not only as a member, and with a sufficient representation of the people in the country—cheers—and if the question came up he would vote for it with the greatest confidence as one of the best things he could do for the good government of the country. He thought he had been a good and efficient representative, spectability, of culture, and of property. Of course, it is quite impossible that the whole body of electors should turn up at any election. There are, first of all, absences, the number of whom cannot be inconsiderable; next, there are deductions to be made on account of sickness and death. In addition to these are men who have votes in half-a-dozen and possibly half-a-score constituencies; few of these can vote everywhere, particularly if the whole of the elections for a large division of the country take place on the same day. By such an arrangement a considerable number of electors are practically disfranchised. But, after allowance is made for electors who are sick, who are absent, or who are supplied with a larger sphere than they can fill, there are thousands, perhaps tens of thousands, who, while others fight the battles of the State, content themselves with looking on. Strangers who have visited Sydney during the last few days will be apt to conclude that the community is convulsed to its very centre, and no doubt appearances point to that conclusion. But here, as elsewhere, appearances deceive. No doubt the agitation which is caused by a general election is a real and a very general one. But if there are those who are in earnest as to what may happen to the Ministry or the Opposition, there are those who care very little about either. If any legislator were to seriously propose to disfranchise a quarter or a third of the adult males of the community, he would be quickly reminded that it was the last proposition of the kind he would have an opportunity of making. But though people would object to being disfranchised by anybody else, they do not mind disfranchising themselves. The right that is too precious to be parted with is one that they do not trouble themselves to exercise.

Nor can it be denied that some plausible reasons can be urged for abstention from voting at general elections. Everywhere, unfortunately, the political arena furnishes a very great deal of vulgarity and violence. Persons who love refinement and repose would see little that is attractive, or even endurable, in such an arena. There are still people, we suppose, who make it a part of their virtue to have nothing to do with politics. A large class would be willing enough to vote for a good man if they could find one, but they decline to vote for men who are not worth voting for. But we fancy that the majority of those who do not record their votes do so because they do not deem it worth their while to put themselves to the sacrifice. For this reason no small section of the community keep out of politics, and so the affairs of the community get managed by cliques and coteries, who, instead of caring for the country, care only for their personal interests, or for those of their organisations. It is high time for patriotic citizens to think of these things. If we are to have better Parliaments, those to whom legislation is a matter of some consequence should assist to make them better. A man's duty to his country is as sacred as his duty to his God. His duty to his country is a part of his duty to his God. We can hardly conceive of circumstances in which a healthy man ought to neglect that duty. Something is done when by the putting of an indifferent man, in a bad man is kept out. But whatever is done at a general election should be done, not by classes and factions, but by the community generally. In a democratic community a Legislative Assembly should represent, not a handful of the people, but the people as a whole.

The polling in a number of electoral districts will take place to-day, but the contest in which public interest centres is the contest in St. Leonards between Mr. Dibbs and Sir HENRY PARKES. The circumstances are peculiar. Mr. Dibbs is the head of the Ministry. Sir HENRY PARKES desires to be the leader of the country in this election. That is his own phrase. The meaning of it is that he desires to be the head of another Ministry in Mr. Dibbs's place. He might, had he so chosen, have sought, and probably obtained, election elsewhere, and then have fought his fight with Mr. Dibbs on the floor of the House. He has preferred (to use a hackneyed phrase) to fight it behind the back of Parliament instead of before its face, by attempting to prevent Mr. Dibbs's election, instead of moving for his condemnation, and that of the new Ministry, by the whole body of the representatives of the people. Such tactics are not new, but the absence of novelty is no more a recommendation of them than the novelty attaching to the proceedings of the Government is proof that it is in principle unconstitutional and wrong. But Sir HENRY PARKES has a dull eye for principles when their application would cut against his own interests and actions. He complains of the reconstruction of the Ministry behind the back of Parliament, but practically declares that behind the back of Parliament its destruction should take place. He says that the reconstruction should have been carried through before Parliament was prorogued, so that the Assembly might have expressed its opinion upon it; and now he is doing what he can to prevent or forestall an expression of opinion by the Assembly. He treats it as all-important that judgment should have been pronounced by the last Assembly, which according to his own representation was incapable of useful action and unworthy of trust—in article mortis, and only fit to be knocked on the head; and yet he is trying to anticipate and supersede a judgment by the new Assembly, freshly instructed by the constituencies. Of what possible use or gain to the country or to the cause of constitutional government would have been a vote of the last Assembly upon the new Ministry?—a vote which, according to Sir HENRY PARKES's own theory, must have been without force or effect, because it would only have been preliminary to a dissolution referring the question to the country, as it has actually been referred.

So far as outward appearances go, Sir HENRY PARKES, in thus bidding for the leadership of the country, is fighting for his own hand. The recognised leader of the Opposition, who is suffering from impaired health, goes for re-election to his old constituency, in the regular way. We hear little about the more prominent members of the Opposition. It does not appear that they are getting up any holy war or crusade. They, apparently, are content to leave the issue to the general results of the elections and to the new Parliament. Sir HENRY PARKES, bidding for the leadership of the country, marks out his own course. Perhaps he is right in doing so; doubtless he has a right to do so. He may have as little confidence in the men amidst whom he lately sat as they have in him; and possibly it may seem that he would gain more absolute command of the situation by fighting this battle alone (if he should win), than by taking a less conspicuous place. If that be his view of the case, he is certainly free to carry it out. But it is not somewhat contemptible for a candidate, who thus forces himself to the front so as to attract the gaze of all people, to be at the same time hedging and equivocating, and holding his followers in tow by ambiguous words, so as to secure in the event of defeat the reversion of another seat? Few things could be more discreditable to the intending leader of the country than the absence of straightforwardness, candour, and courage, that has distinguished Sir HENRY PARKES's palterings between the electorates of St. Leonards and Argyle. Few things could be more insulting to the electors of both constituencies than this transparent endeavour to make men tools or instruments of both. Nothing in the way of a tardy explanation, to save appearances and votes, can now disguise the fact that, whilst seeking to gain the critical point of defeating Mr. Dibbs at St. Leonards, Sir HENRY PARKES abstained from definitively staking his own fortunes upon that election, and from openly and honestly terminating his relations with Argyle. The correspondence and negotiations tended rather to keep this back door open than to close it before all time for the morning delivery on Monday.

But, if proceedings like these were unworthy of the occasion, equally unworthy was the palpable localism put forward at such a time and place. Here is a contest for the leadership of the country, and in the front rank of claims for support are promises of a bridge and a road. As the hour approaches the promises multiply. To the bridge to connect the North Shore with Sydney is now added a railway to the sea at Manly Beach. Does that also happen to be "a great national work?" Whatever other candidates may do, the man who is ambitious of leading the country might at least hold himself above the level of the roads-and-bridges members whom he contemplates.

Our telegraphic intelligence of this morning announces that a Servian attack on Bulgaria is imminent, and that sixty thousand Austrian troops are reinforcing Bosnia and Herzegovina. The inference from this will be that the Constantinople Conference has failed to accomplish its mission, and that if Servia takes action Austria will hold herself ready for possible consequences. We may also take it for granted that if Servia is backed up by Austria, Bulgaria will be supported by Russia. A quarrel between small countries would not necessarily be followed by a rupture between the larger ones, but if war breaks out at all, it will be next to impossible to confine it to Servia and Bulgaria. The feud between these two countries is a long-standing one. They have always been jealous of each other. The somewhat unreasonable complaint of Servia was that she was ill-treated by the framers of the Berlin Treaty, and that Bulgaria was too well treated. Since that treaty was framed, a Servian politician pointed out in a London contemporary a few weeks ago that the Bulgarians have been systematically attempting to foment rebellion on the Servian frontier. Nor is this all. The same writer points out that Bulgaria has been laying claim to two or three important strategical points which have always belonged to Servia. The Servian politician explains that Bulgaria has set her heart upon Macedonia as well as upon Piret and Vrana. What the immediate cause of the present quarrel may be has yet to be explained. It is possible that since Bulgaria has secured, or hopes to secure, the whole of Roumania, she has been signifying that she intends to round off her possessions by a slice of Servia. But whatever the cause of the quarrel may be, we may rest assured that Panslavist agents are at the bottom of it, and that, in some way or other, such a contest as the one that is now said to be imminent would extend to Austria and Russia. For the last seven years Servia has been under the guardianship of Austria, while Bulgaria has been the centre of the operations, if not of Russia, of Russian agents. The King of Servia has in an important matter been following the lead of Austria, and to a large extent by his own will has been perfecting a railway system in South-Eastern Europe. The hand of a sure trouble to the Panslavist party, who, in the event of a war, will as surely take the side of Bulgaria as Austria.

ALWS. OF THE DAY.

The Orient Company's P.M.S. Cuzco, with the English mails via Suva, arrived at Adelaide yesterday morning, and left again for Melbourne at a quarter past 8 o'clock in the afternoon. Her mails will probably reach Melbourne in time for the Sydney portion to be despatched on Saturday, when they may arrive here in time for the morning delivery on Monday.

Our Paris correspondent paid a visit to the Monte de Pies of that city, and went through the process of pawnning and redeeming his watch in order to see the place and its customers. The result of his observations are given in a special article which appears in another column of to-day's Advertiser.

Parliamentary Elections.

TO THE ELECTORS OF WEST SYDNEY.

Gentlemen.—At the request of a large circle of friends I have consented to become a candidate for one of the seats now vacant in the representation of West Sydney in the Parliament of the colony. In this I have done so, not to serve my own personal political ends, who is to solve the political problems of the day, but rather as one who, from a long residence in the colony, has gained a broad knowledge of the people.

I have already served you for a period of six years in the City Council, and have always endeavoured to do my duty honestly and fairly, and to the best of my knowledge and conscientiousness to myself.

I do not propose to enter into any detail of the action that I have taken in what I conceive to be the true interest of the citizens, but shall, on the day before you a summary of the political views which I hold, and which I shall be glad to have you consider at the various meetings called on my behalf previous to the election.

In order to end reform, I am opposed to the wholesale alienation of the public estate, and believe the creation of large landed properties a mistake. The present Land Act, although not tyrannical, is the whole of its principles, I am in favour of giving this a trial.

I am strongly opposed to the present Licensing Act, as it is oppressive and tyrannical in its operation, and opposed to the trial of the police.

I am in favour of a fiscal policy that will give encouragement to the investment of capital and the introduction of machinery in the development of the resources and industries of the colony.

I am in favour of extending the municipal franchises to the householders, the extension of railways, and the conservation of water, and also in favour of an extensive and comprehensive report to any Government who will firmly deal with the question local Government and the public health.

I am in favour of the candidates pledged to no party; and should you honour me by electing me as one of your representatives, I shall always be found supporting such measures as will be conducive to the best interests of the colony.

I have the honour to be, Gentlemen,

Yours, &c., J. D. YOUNG.

DECLARATION OF POLL.

The Declaration of the Poll will be made at the Hastings, Belmore Park, THIS EVENING, at 8 o'clock, or as soon after as possible.

ROBERT FOWLER, Returning Officer.

October 18, 1886.

CANDIDATE.

Gentlemen.—Do not allow yourselves to be deceived on a false issue about the EIGHT HOURS SYSTEM.

I am now and have been in its favour for the last twenty-eight years.

A number of sincere, well-meaning, and enthusiastic supporters of the system have been GOT AT by Agents and Partisans of some of my Co-Candidates, who are now distilling their lies into a false cry, and a false issue on the EIGHT HOURS SYSTEM.

In the issue of increasing their support.

Our present PECIAL POLICY places nearly all Factories in naked competition with the long hours and low wages of Europe and in our case with the surplus products of Victoria and the Cheap Labour of China. The result is that the Chinese are now producing rope and forcing it into this market, where we have now to compete with it.

IF EIGHT HOURS is adopted that will assist Colonial Factories to compete with imported goods. The hours of labour in such Factories will not be shortened without destroying such industries.

A PECIAL ACT.

is urgently required, and the sooner the better, to deal with in a legal a measure; and I will advocate their Reduction in All Factories as soon as the Pecial circumstances will admit.

Again I say, DON'T BE LED ASTRAY ON A FALSE ISSUE.

ARCHIBALD FORSYTH.
